Josh –

I am just forwarding to you a document which I put down some initial thoughts on the Mica Creek Study – Why this may be of some importance to you is that OFIC referenced this study to support their conclusion that heat loading, resulting from harvest activities, does transport downstream (they might have also brought this up in your conversations). Just wanted to point out that I came to a slightly different conclusion after reading the article (which is outlined in my memo to Alan). Please do not forward this memo – Thanks. I have also attached the article.
